Carbon Express F-15 Broadheads

Field Logic Block Fusion

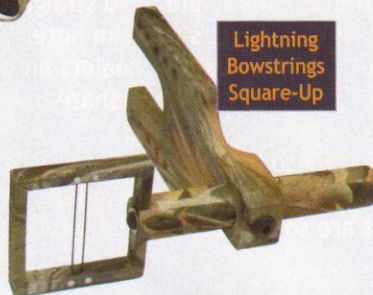

Trophy Ridge Judge Sight

Octane BantamWeight Bowquiver

Lightning Bowstrings Square-Up

Norway Fusion Vanes

"Have you seen the Tri-Van Vanishing Arrow Rest?" bubbled an unusually high number of dealers. "It's like a Biscuit, but it's also a drop-away rest. That's cool."

"Did you see the basketball demonstration with the new Carbon Express F-15 broadheads? That was an eye-opener. I'm definitely going to try the F-15s this year."

"I was amazed at how Bear Archery seemed to have totally remade their Trophy Ridge accessory lineup. The new Trophy Ridge sights, bowquivers and arrow rests really impressed me."

"I liked the new Fusion Vanes from Duravanes. I fletch lots of arrows, and the Fusion Vane concept makes perfect sense to me."

"Copper John's new BattleAxe sight with field-replaceable IronClad fiber optics may be the best, toughest sight in its price class I've ever seen."

"Goat Tuff's new Arrow Shaft Cleaner Kit is something my arrow-making customers will like. It represents a complete, easy-to-use system for effectively cleaning and degreasing carbon shafts before fletching."

"The Square-Up rear alignment device from Lightning Bowstrings really seems to work well. It's simple and easy, and it instantly showed me when I was torquing my bow. I think it will be especially beneficial when shooting from a treestand."

"The Instant Alert Scent Badge was astounding. It tells you straight away if your scent-elimination efforts are working or not."

Those are just a few of the dealer comments Inside Archery received at the show. By the end of the show, we had developed a long list of new and exciting archery accessories for 2009. These are the products showgoers couldn't stop talking about.

Here, in no particular order, are some of the hottest new hunting accessories displayed at this year's ATA Trade Show. We undoubtedly missed other exciting accessories, but these clearly stood out.

Carbon Express F-15 Broadheads

Broadheads are all about cutting, and the brand new Carbon Express F-15 broadheads are wicked cutters. There are two F-15 versions. The new F-15 Dual Blade broadhead has six cutting edges, four of which are parallel dual-cut blades. This is a solid, fixed-blade head that looks like a fighter jet and penetrates like a demon. The new F-15 Expandable is a dual-bladed mechanical broadhead that opens upon impact to cut a double swath through the biggest of game. Its blades are a full .030-inches thick for added strength and durability. For more information on both F-15 broadheads, log onto carbonexpressarrows.com or call (800) 241-4833.
